THE "ROCK OF AGES."

Odd History of a Picture Which Is In Nearly Every Home.

No picture of modern times has taken a stronger hold upon popular favor or fulfilled a higher mission than that whose history is here recorded. It has been reproduced in every form, has made its way into the homes of the inhabitants of all parts of the civilized globe.

The popularity of the "Rock of Ages" is an open secret which "he who runs may read."

The painting is a symbolic representation of the Christian faith. In the midst of an ocean of sin the cross, founded deep upon the eternal Godhead and offering the only safety, erects itself. To it a female figure clings. She is the representative of weakness, of helpless dependence, of affectionate trust. Her garment is wet with the spray of daily temptation and infirmity, but her gaze is upward, from whence streams the light of forgiveness, of love, of hope, of assured divine favor.

In painful contrast to this figure is the masculine hand in the foreground of the picture, the symbol of self dependence, which, reaching out of the waters, endeavors to lay hold of a piece of floating wreck. It eludes the grasp, but even if possessed would offer no support. Thus the things of earth, mere fragments tossed on a sea of change, can uphold a struggling, sinking soul, which must cling for succor to the "Rock of Ages."

The picture was produced first as a small sketch in the album of a young girl living in Westerly, R. I., by the Rev. Johannes A. Oertel. This aroused the attention of all who saw it and induced Mr. Oertel to make a painting of the subject in oil. This second representation, measuring perhaps 14 inches in height, Mr. Oertel exhibited in the National Academy of Design, in New York, and realizing its commercial value Mr. William Shans, a Broadway art dealer, suggested that a still larger painting should be made of the design. His suggestion was acted upon, the artist first fashioning a small clay model and suspending a lamp over it, that it might receive the rays of light from above. In this manner a color study (which is now in Mr. Oertel's possession) was made, and from it in turn the finished painting, measuring 4 feet in height.

Before this picture was exhibited, however, a number of photographs of it were struck off and put upon the market, and one of these falling into the hands of Mr. James, a picture dealer in Providence, he made an offer to Mr. Oertel to become the sole publisher of all subsequent copies, which offer was accepted under a written contract.

The painting was placed at the gallery of William Shans, but was only on exhibition a few days when it was bought by a Brooklyn merchant, Augustus Storrs, for the sum of $1,000. The photographs got out by Mr. James, measuring 10 inches in height, brought (without frame) the quite phenomenal price of $5 apiece, and so great was the demand for them that the operator found himself unable to meet it. Indeed the run upon these pictures was unprecedented in the history of photography, and complaints were constantly made by the dealers that they were losing sales in consequence of an insufficient supply of copies.

It then occurred to Mr. James that a chromo-lithograph might be got out with advantage (the work to be done in Paris), and an application for this purpose was made to the owner for the loan of the original. Mr. Storrs, however, was unwilling that his picture should be carried to such a distance, and Mr. Oertel, who had never parted with the copyright, set about making a new painting. This work was done at Irvington-on-the-Hudson, the home of the celebrated landscape painter, Albert Bierstadt, who, during a temporary absence in England, had given Mr. Oertel the use of his studio.—Philadelphia Times.

His Future.

The boy was all right, notwithstanding his girly curls and a fond mother who was deathly afraid he was going to become coarse and vulgar and in other respects masculine. One day a gentleman calling at the house engaged him in conversation.

"Well, my boy," he said, after some time, "what are you going to do when you grow up?"

The boy studied the question a moment.

"Really," he replied at last, "I don't know. I suppose I ought to be a man, but from the way mamma is handling me I'm almost afraid I'm going to be a lady."—Detroit Free Press.

Speeches and Investments.

"So," said the old gentleman, "you think of becoming a politician?"

"Yes, father, I have ambitions in that direction."

"Well, you will of course be more or less of an orator, and I want to impress on your mind one admonition: Be brief. Remember that a speech is not like an investment. You cannot increase the interest by waiting."—American Industries.

For Dice Throwers.

Lives there a man with experience so narrow that he has not "shaken the bones?" Did you ever stop to think of the various combinations that can be made with dice and the chances of reaching certain results?

Suppose two "bones" are in the box. The chances of throwing certain numbers are as follows:

There is one throw which gives 2 or 12.

There are two throws which give 3 or 11.

There are three throws which give 4 or 10.

There are four throws which give 5 or 9.

There are 5 throws which give 6 or 8.

There are 6 throws which give 7.

With three dice the combinations are more varied, as follows:

There is 1 throw which gives 3 or 18.

There are 3 throws which give 4 or 17.

There are 6 throws which give 5 or 16.

There are 10 throws which give 6 or 15.

There are 15 throws which give 7 or 14.

There are 21 throws which give 8 or 13.

There are 25 throws which give 9 or 12.

There are 27 throws which give 10 or 11.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Preventive Precautions.

People wonder how doctors can prevent themselves from carrying disease. It is simply care and nothing else that makes a physician seem impervious to disease. And the method is so simple that many people would never notice that a doctor was taking any precaution whatever. Now, for instance, I go to the door of a room which contains a patient having some contagious disease. I give a knock. Perhaps a voice from within will say, "Come in," but I make no move. I wait there until some one opens the door for me. By touching the doorknob I might come in contact with disease germs.

I go into the room, go over to the patient, perhaps feel the pulse or look at the tongue, always careful that none of my clothes come in contact with the bedclothing or anything else in the room. After this I prescribe my medicine and leave. I never sit down in a room where there is a contagious case. After leaving the room I wash my hands in water containing bichloride, and I am as perfectly free from disease germs as when I entered the room. People do not seem to know that you must come in contact with the germs before you can carry them.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Fan In Japan.

The Japanese uchiwa, or flat fan, at home and in history is a very much more interesting object than the modern specimen of its kind in an English room. One of its most curious varieties is the iron war fan, invented in the eleventh century for the use of military commanders, either for direction and signaling or as a shield for defense. These flat fans were made of leather and iron, one side being varnished with red lacquer, with the emblem of Buddha and some other native device.

The water fans are made of bamboo and thinly lacquered, so that they may be dipped in water to secure extra coolness while fanning. To harden these fans they are dipped in shibu juice, which also acts as a dye, turning red when exposed to the air. Another kind of uchiwa is the revolving flat fan, which whirls round its stick and can be rolled up. Another strong flat paper fan is used as bellows to blow the charcoal fire in the kitchen.—London Spectator.

Branching of Oaks.

Referring to a paragraph in which it is observed that the American oak, Quercus alba, has a similar characteristic to the English oak in having side branches which occasionally assume the dimensions of huge trunks, Mr. Howard Worcester Gilbert notes that in the Quaker graveyard at Salem, N. J., there is a white oak which would rival any American and almost any oak in the English parks. The spread of branches was over 50 paces. Some of these side branches rival the trunk in strength. There is a tradition that the tree was mutilated by soldiers during the Revolutionary war, and that the tree as it now appears has grown from a sprout which shot up at that time.—Meehan's Monthly.

Disobeying Orders.

One day a group of staff officers were discussing in Sheridan's presence the qualities most essential for a soldier. Some thought personal bravery, others moral courage, strong love of country, while one insisted rather obtrusively that obedience—unreasoning obedience—was everything. "Give me the man who always obeys orders," he declared. Then appealing to Sheridan this officer asked, "Isn't he the perfect soldier, general?" "No," replied Sheridan shortly, "I prefer the soldier who knows when to disobey them."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Vegetarian Cider.

At a banquet given by French vegetarians in Paris, attended by several distinguished persons, "vegetarian cider" was served. The account does not add whether or not it was hard—to take.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Making a School Globe.

A hollow wooden or iron sphere is first formed with wires projecting at opposite ends to indicate the poles. Then strips of damp paper are spread all over it; other strips of paper soaked in paste are laid over them, then other strips and so on till the total thickness of the layer is about an eighth of an inch. When completely dry, the pasteboard envelope is cut in the line of the (future) equator and is separated from the mold in two hemispheres. These are fastened by nails to the two ends of a wooden rod exactly equal in length to the diameter of the globe, and the edges of the hemispheres are glued together so that we get a pasteboard sphere.

Two wires projecting from the two ends of the wooden rod penetrate the pasteboard and form the poles of the globe. The pasteboard is then coated six or more times over with whiting, glue and oil until a considerable substance has been laid on, each layer being dried before the next is applied. At this stage of the manufacture any irregularity on the surface of the globe is remedied by working a metal semicircle round and round the sphere till the surface is made quite smooth. The surface is then marked by means of a beam compass, with lines to represent the circles of latitude and longitude.—Goldthwaite's Geographical Magazine.

A Cold Wave.

"I see," said the grocer thoughtlessly, for he had forgotten that the man with the ginger beard was sitting behind the stove, "I see that the temperature drapped 20 degrees in 15 minutes down in Texas the other day."

"I don't call that nothing," said the man with the ginger beard. "I remember when they was a party of us campin up in the Black Hills that the temperature drapped so sudden that one of the mules in the outfit, which was in the act of kickin, was caught an froze that way an stood with its heels in the air two days. We had a thermometer along, but the cussed thing went back on us, so I can't ezzactly say jist how much of a drap it was."

"Oh, yes," said the schoolteacher, "it is a well known fact that at a temperature of about 40 degrees below zero the mercury freezes and hence cannot register."

"That wasn't it at all, young man," said the man with the ginger beard, with fine scorn. "The durn mercury drapped so quick that the friction made it redhot and busted the glass."

The man from Potato Creek began to snicker, but the man with the ginger beard stopped his mirth with a stony stare.—Indianapolis Journal.

Foot Binding Customs of the Chinese.

It is not certainly known how the Chinese custom of binding the feet of women had its origin. One account is to the effect that it arose during the reign of an empress who had club feet, and that foolish mothers deformed the feet of their little girls in servile imitation of the misfortunes of royalty. Other Chinese writers assert that the breaking and binding of the feet of girl babies gradually became the custom because of the great admiration all classes in the Flowery Kingdom have for delicate pedal extremities.

In a valuable reference work entitled "Notes and Queries on China and Japan" I find the following: "It is recorded that Han-Chee of the Chin dynasty, in the year which corresponds to 583 A. D., ordered the Empress (Lady) Yao to bind her feet so as to make them look like the new moon, and that the evil fashion has since prevailed against all subsequent prohibitions of the custom." Whatever its origin, the adoption of the custom may be said to have been gradual and to have come into general use in spite of much objection on the part of the authorities.—St. Louis Republic.

Perfectly Clear.

Dedbeete—My dear sir, before you ask me for an immediate payment of this account I wish you to consider a few facts which will doubtless redound to your own good. I want to ask you if you do not regard with some degree of satisfaction the prospect of having money coming to you?

The Creditor—Why, of course.

Dedbeete—Now, so long as I am in your debt such a prospect is before you.

The Creditor—Y-y-yes.

Dedbeete (retiring in good form)—And if I were to pay you that prospect would be instantly and entirely cut off, as you can plainly see. I trust that you will learn to look after your own interests better before approaching me on this subject again.—Chicago Record.

A Hint to Society Editors.

"It is strange," says Fogg, "that none of these hustling newspapers ever thought of having a dressmaker on the staff. Why, when Mrs. F. has had a dressmaker in the house one day, she knows more of what is going on in the neighborhood than is to be got out of all the newspapers in the city."—Boston Transcript.

A Recommendation.

Mrs. Darley—Why do you have Mrs. Gabb to sew for you? She is not a good dressmaker.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Coxey's army has gained notoriety, but it has dearly paid for it, and if the men are allowed to remain in their present camp many of them will surely pay for it with their lives. If the authorities had condemned four hundred criminals to be imprisoned in the enclosure that Coxey's men now occupy the humanitarians of the country would be up in arms about it. Why Coxey took those men there is a mystery. A more unfit place could not have been found, and Coxey knew it, because the Health Officer told him. It is alongside of an old canal into which empties a number of the largest and filthiest sewers of Washington. And that is not all by half, the soil is made up of dumpings of filth and inside the enclosure are pools of stagnant water covered with green scum an inch thick. Already a number of the men have been taken to hospitals, and if they are allowed to remain there they will soon begin to die like sheep. Coxey, who stops at a hotel and lives on the best, talks glibly of the men's dying there being an "object lesson," but the men don't seem any more anxious to die than any other men. When Coxey failed in his very mild attempt to speak from the Capitol steps, and together with Browne and Jones was arrested, the movement collapsed; but he still insists that he intends to keep those four hundred men here until they grow into four hundred thousand, when he will again make the attempt. He charges an admission fee to the camp, but only he and Browne know where the money goes. He says it is used to feed the men, but the men are getting mighty poor feed.

The question of legislation that will make some sort of a definite settlement of the debts due the Government from the Pacific railroads isn't making much noise in Congress, but it is exciting the deepest interest, and the Congressmen know it. The money spent within the last decade in the employment of high-priced legal talent by the various interested parties would have gone a long ways towards paying the interest on these debts. Several propositions are being considered by the House and Senate Pacific Railroads Committees, ranging from practically presenting the roads with the amount of their indebtedness to the Government's taking possession of the roads and running them. It is not yet certain what will be done, nor even what will be recommended by the committees. These railroads have never yet failed to head off in some way all Congressional legislation that they did not approve, but they will find the job more difficult this time.

Senator Harsbrough of North Dakota says he has always favored Government ownership and control of all telegraph lines, and that he will do all in his power to aid the movement of his fellow-craftsmen, the printers, to bring about that result.

The statement made this week by Representative Rayner of Md., that Wall street influences are being used to secure the repeal of the tax on State bank currency, because money can be made by shoving the notes that would then be issued, has not improved the chances of the repeal bill. Mr. Rayner says a careful canvass of the House made by himself and Representative Springer of Illinois shows the passage of the bill to be an impossibility, unless there is a change of opinion on the part of a number of members. It is understood that the Populists will vote solidly against the bill; also the Republicans.

Somebody is a long ways from the truth as to the present tariff situation. Although Secretary Carlisle announced the first of the week that a compromise had been arranged that would make the passage of the amendment bill certain, Senators still deny it vehemently and even call each other ugly names about it. Senator Voorhees, Chairman of the Finance Committee, says the income tax has got to stay and that he will make no further concessions in the interests of trusts. Senators Hill of New York and Smith of New Jersey make it very plain that they will refuse to vote for the bill with the income tax in it, no matter what other changes may be made. Senator Teller is the only Republican who has openly declared in favor of the income tax, although it is believed that five or six of them will vote for it when the motion is made to strike it out of the bill, but on the final vote on the entire bill the Republicans will probably vote solidly against it. As may be inferred from the above the situation is decidedly mixed, and it will probably remain so until the Democratic Senators settle upon their programme.

It is all well enough to say that thirteen is an unlucky number. But this country started in business with thirteen states, and seems to be holding her own.

The concert to be given by the Band at Weyl's Hall will certainly be a great success as the people of the valley look forward to these concerts as the great event of the year, and the band members are sparing neither time, pains nor money in the effort to make the coming concert surpass all previous ones.

The result was immediate relief, and a few doses cured him completely. It is made for bowel complaint and nothing else. It never fails. For sale by all dealers.

Fought for Life

Long Siege of Dangerous Illness

Left in Low Condition—Given Health and Strength by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Gentlemen:—I have been through a terrible siege of illness, and owe my present health to Hood's Sarsaparilla. First, I was taken sick with measles, and on the eighth day the doctor said I had bronchitis following that complaint. In a short time lung fever developed, and I was in a serious condition for quite a while. When I began to get a little better, my friends thought that if I ever got up I would have

Consumption,

I had such a terrible cough and threw off twice my weight. I continued in a very weak and low condition; my weight falling from 115, before I was taken sick, to 68 pounds. Then in January, 1893, I had an attack of the grip, and was confined to my room ten weeks. After this attack I was still very weak and did not gain health at all until I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. I had no appetite for anything, and was sick at my stomach continually and had a bad taste in my mouth. Some friends who were taking Hood's Sarsaparilla begged me to try it. My parents had despaired of anything doing me good, but began to give me the medicine, and before I had taken one bottle there was such that they were glad to have me continue. The second bottle did for me what no medicine had ever done. It gave me strength and brought my general health up to where it was two weeks before I was taken with the measles. I have now finished my third bottle, and feel strong and well. I shall always thank to Hood's Sarsaparilla." E. IRENA HARRIS, Irving, Oregon.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

Emanuel Rommell Thrown from His Cart—His Neck Broken.

Emanuel Rommell, the owner of a mountain ranch in Nun's Canyon, was thrown from his go-cart and instantly killed on Friday night of last week. He was on his way to the Bowen ranch and upon reaching the gate which led into the place, a companion who was riding with him got out of the cart to open the same. As the gate swung back the horse became frightened and commenced backing and horse, cart and driver went over the grade, which is very steep at that point, and fell in a heap at the bottom of the creek below.

When assistance reached Rommell he was stone dead, his neck and one of his legs having been broken in his fall.

The deceased was an old resident of this valley, and years ago he was an employee on the Buena Vista ranch near this place. He was a native of Germany and aged 64 years.

Sad Death.

The friends of the Gilbert-Carriger families in this valley were greatly shocked at the sudden death of Mrs. Wm. Gilbert, ee Maggie Carriger, in San Francisco last Wednesday evening. The deceased gave birth to a fine, healthy baby boy about two weeks ago and had apparently entirely recovered from her confinement and was up and around attending to her household duties on the morning before she died. Early on Wednesday morning last Mrs. Gilbert was taken with excrutiating pains in the region of the abdomen, and although three physicians did everything in their power to relieve her sufferings she died in less than twelve hours after being seized with the pains. The deceased was the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Carriger of this valley and was married to Mr. Gilbert in this place about two years ago. She leaves a husband, a babe and a large number of relatives and friends to mourn her sudden and unexpected death. Mrs. Gilbert was a native of Sonoma, aged 29 years, 7 months and 27 days. The remains will be brought to Sonoma for interment. The funeral will take place from St. Francis' church this morning at half-past ten o'clock.

Our High School.

Prof. Lange of the State University examined the English work in the Sonoma Valley Union High School last Monday and reported favorably. Prof. Slate of the same institution arrived in town by train Wednesday and in the evening talked to an appreciative audience at Union Hall on the subject of "Common Interests of Schools and Universities." On Thursday he examined the science work being done in our High School and had no hesitancy in saying that the work was up to the requirements of the University. The history work will be examined in the near future.

Warm Weather.

The weather has been quite warm the past week for the month of May, the themometer registering on the afternoon of several days as high as 95 degrees in the shade. In consequence a big run has been made on ice cream and lemonade by the ladies, while the men, the horrid creatures, have been content to regale themselves on plain beer. The nights and mornings have been quite cool and pleasant and crops of all kinds, especially fruit and vegetables, are making a rapid growth.

The Hay Crop.

It has been supposed that like many other sections of the State the hay and grain crop of Sonoma Valley will be short. Generally speaking this is not the case. In many instances the crop will be somewhat short owing to late planting, but for the most part hay and grain will turn out just as well this season as usual. All the mountain ranches have fine-looking hay fields. In the valley proper the hay fields on the Buena Vista ranch, the Jones tract, and many of those of our small farms promise a heavy yield.

The Vineyards.

The vineyards surrounding Sonoma and Glen Ellen will turn out a fine crop of wine grapes this season. For the most part all the vineyards in Sonoma Valley are resistant and phylloxera in this section will soon be a thing of the past. The only thing now lacking to make wine-growing a profitable industry in this valley is for the wine market to pick up. Phylloxera has lost all its terrors in Sonoma Valley. Our vineyardists have conquered that bug. The only thing they now fear are the big bugs in the three-story vineyards of San Francisco, who control prices on this Coast.

THE REPUBLICANS.

A Call for a Meeting of the County Central Committee.

J. D. Barnett, Chairman of the Republican County Central Committee, has issued a call for a meeting of the committee at the Magnolia Hotel, Santa Rosa, next Monday at 1 o'clock. The meeting will be held for the purpose of fixing a date for holding the primaries and a County Convention at which will be nominated a county ticket and delegates selected to the State and District Conventions to be held in Sacramento on June 19th. The Santa Rosa Republican, in commenting on the call for a meeting, says: "This year we have delegates to elect to three District Conventions—the Congressional, the Railroad Commission and the State Board of Equalization. These, with the delegates to the State Convention, will make four sets of delegates to be chosen. The county is to have twenty-one delegates in each of these convention, and, while the same men may represent the county in all of these bodies, it is recommended by the State Central Committee that, as far as practicable, a different delegation be chosen to each convention. This will give opportunity for eighty-four Republicans to go to Sacramento as delegates."

What Sonoma Wants.

ED. INDEX-TRIBUNE:

In the last issue of your paper you gave your readers an account of the workings of the political maching in Santa Rosa. The slatemakers, it seems, have already parceled out the county offices, or at least the nominees for the same, allowing most graciously the office of Recorder to go to Petaluma, and that of Assessor to Vallejo Township; also, mentioning the name of Robt. A. Poppe of Sonoma for the office of District Attorney. Now, we are well aware that if Albert G. Burnett wants the nomination for District Attorney he will certainly get it, and, what is more, will also be elected, for he has made heretofore an A No. 1 officer. What is the meaning of all this, gentlemen of Santa Rosa? Do you think you can satisfy Sonoma with a little taffy? Don't make such a mistake. We don't want a bare bone, but a bone with some meat on it. We want the nomination of Robt. A. Poppe for the Assembly to represent the Seventeenth Assembly District in the next Legislature, or we will know the reason why not!

Yours Truly,
REPUBLICAN.

SUICIDE IN HEALDSBURG.

A Young Man Blows His Brains Out With a Shot-gun.

Last Tuesday morning, says the Santa Rosa Democrat, George Gebaur of Healdsburg committed suicide by shooting himself in the head with a shot-gun.

The tragedy occurred in Harrock's Grove, where Gebaur had a beer garden. A few years ago the place was badly run down and Gebaur undertook to build it up and regain its lost trade. He went to considerable expense in the undertaking and was disappointed in his expectations. It is thought that brooding over the money he had expended without any return caused him to grow despondent to a suicidal degree.

Were no other explanation at hand, that of hereditary insanity would meet the case, as his father took his own life in a shocking manner in almost the same spot three years ago. The old man had been absent from his family four days, and when his body was found hanging in the barn by the neck, death and the weather had rendered it a sight unfit for the gaze of man. Young Gebaur followed in the footsteps of his father, not only in the daily routine of his life, but in the tragic manner of his exit. He went on with the business at the beer garden and did all in his power to regain its lost prestige and remove the stigma cast upon it by his father's horrible ending.

Coroner Ungewitter was sent for and arrived to hold the inquest on the afternoon of the same day.

If you want a good roast or steak go to Weyl's meat market. *

It has been proved, as the result of experiments, that the circulation of the blood is affected by music.

Visitors to Sonoma on business or pleasure will find the Sonoma House as conducted by Harry Fisheer the hotel of Sonoma. *

If you want the very best of wine, liquors or cigars go to the Union Hotel, and you will be politely served by Mr. A. A. Enke. *

The meals to be had at the Sonoma House, now kept by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fisheer, are the best to be had in any hotel north of San Francisco. *

Miss Bertha Campbell was taken quite ill after attending church last Sunday night, and has been confined to her bed all the week. Her condition, we are pleased to state, is now much improved.

The attraction at Union Hall last Wednesday evening was an informal talk by Prof. Slate of the State University on the "Common Interests of Schools and Universities." Although the notice of the Professor's coming was brief still quite a number were in attendance owing to the efforts of Prof. A. C. Abshire of the Sonoma High School, who with his usual characteristic enterprise had dodgers struck off and distributed announcing the affair, engaged a hall, invited home talent to participate, and in consequence when Prof. Slate arrived at the hall the following programme was successfully carried out: Piano solo, Miss Cecilia Granice; vocal solo, Mrs. Lulu de Emparan; cornet solo, Prof. H. G. Maxwell; vocal solo, Miss Natalie Haraszthy. The cornet solo rendered by Prof. Maxwell showed a high order of musical ability and brought forth round after round of applause. After the musical programme Prof. Slate was introduced to the audience and spoke for half an hour in a most instructive and entertaining manner. His remarks were listened to with great attention and at the conclusion he was liberally applauded. After this ice cream was served by the ladies of the Congregational Church and it was quite late ere this pleasant gathering dispersed for their respective homes.

A good stain for the kitchen floor is to take equal parts of turpentine and linseed oil and stir in a little burat umber. After mixing these ingredients try a little on a plank to see if the color suits. If it is not dark enough put in a little more umber. Put the color on with a brush, rubbing it in well. This staining can be done by any one. It is not necessary to send for a painter.

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

SONOMA, SATURDAY, MAY 12th, 1894.

RICHARD THE LION HEARTED.

The Remarkable Career and Conquests of the Crusader Monarch.

The success of King Richard Lion Heart, though not complete, was all the more remarkable. When he landed at Acre in 1191, he already had in his gift a kingdom nearly as large as that which King Guy had lost—the island of Cyprus, conquered by English soldiers sailing in an English fleet, which the Latins had never before attempted to take from its so called "emperor," Isaac Comnenus. It had the same strategical value then that it still possesses as a "place of arms"—to use a military technical phrase—or base for attack on Asia.

The reconquest of Palestine in face of a united Islam under a victorious leader, who was respected for his austere religious conduct and trusted on account of his skill and genius, was no easy task, but it was necessary for the prosperity of the great Italian trade and demanded by the public opinion of Europe. The French and English were enemies at home, and their friendship in the east was hollow. With such unwilling allies, and in face of forces from Egypt and Arabia, Syria and Mesopotamia, King Richard succeeded in wresting from Saladin half of his conquests in Palestine and in restoring to the Templars and Hospitallers all the lands and castles which they had lost in the plains.

His treaty, made after the French had deserted, when he himself had won a great battle, had taken Acre by assault and had chased the Moslems out of all Sharon and Philistia to Gaza, brought about a condition of affairs which endured for a century after. Cypress represented an addition to the Latin possessions equal in extent and superior in fertility to the lands which by this treaty Saladin retained, and though the jealousy of French and Germans led to King Richard's two years' captivity at a time when his presence was sorely needed in England he was recognized as the champion of Christendom, who alone of all the leaders of the time had shown himself equal to Saladin, and he became a popular hero in Europe and among the Moslems as well. —Edinburgh Review.

Sport In Cape Breton.

Hark! Far away, but clear as a bugle note ringing over the hills, came the "kronk, kronk" of flying geese. We knew they were miles away as down the aisles of night came the warning notes of their approach, nearer and nearer, now over the sand dunes, unseen, but heralding their approach by their own peculiar music. I crouched in the bottom of the boat, every nerve thrilling to the clamor of the approaching game. The good old gun was held in readiness for a swift swing and lightning pull.

Suddenly, outlined against the sky, a wedge of dark forms swept into view, visible but for a second in the small space of blue that canopied our ambuscade. Two tongues of fire leaped upward as the gun touched the shoulder, and heavy bodies hissed down unseen to strike the water with a sounding splash. We paddled over to where they lay—three great gray beauties, their gray white breasts gleaming upon the dark wave. It was a proud moment for Joe as he slowly paddled back to our anchorage with our fowl beside him, for the geese were plump after a winter in the marshy paradise of the south.—Outing.

Ancient Ventriloquism.

Ventriloquism was undoubtedly known both to the Jews and to the Egyptians. It was used by many persons for purposes of deception. The wizards who employed it declared that their "familiar spirit" resided in the abdomen, whence the voice was supposed to proceed. The Old Testament Scriptures abound with denunciations both of persons who had these familiar spirits and of those who went to seek their advice and assistance. They were treated as though they were in familiar intercourse with the evil one, and according to Jewish law received no mercy. Instances, however, are very frequent in much later history of deception being successfully practiced by persons having this peculiar gift.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Foreign Interest Account.

A leading foreign banker says that there is a disposition to belittle the importance of the international interest account. His records, extending over a series of years, show that fully $110,000,000 are sent abroad each year for interest on foreign holdings of American securities. To this should be added from $50,000,000 to $60,000,000 expended by American travelers abroad or by the American colonies in European cities. There is also an item of $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 for freights, so that over $200,000,000 have to be remitted each year from this country to Europe on what may be properly classed as interest accounts.—Boston Exchange.

Concentration.

The weakest living creature, by concentrating his powers on a single object, can accomplish something. The strongest, by disposing of his over many, may fail to accomplish anything. The drop, by continually falling, bores its passage through the hardest rock. The hasty torrent rushes over it with hideous uproar and leaves no trace behind.—Carlyle.

Ridicule as a Tonic.

Fidus is a friend of mine. He has a very nice mother who, being quite an old lady, is on terms of most irritating intimacy with thoughts of the hereafter. She will discuss death in the most chatty and familiar way and frequently talks over and revises plans for her own funeral. This dear lady was invited to spend a month with her brother in the distant south. The day before her departure, feeling rather down, she remarked to Fidus, "My son, if I should die while I am away, I shall give up all my original plans and be buried in dear John's plot," and at the thought she pressed her handkerchief to her eyes.

Fidus, not being exactly the same sort, remarked dryly, "Yes, mother; death is apt to unsettle people's original plans, but don't you think it is rather hard on Uncle John, when he has only invited you for a month, to plan a visit of such indefinite length?"

The old lady took down her handkerchief, glared at Fidus and then went about her business comfortably indignant. And that is the moral of my story—a little ridicule or even a reasonable insult is far more tonic in effect than maudlin sympathy.

To weep with those who weep is all very pretty theoretically, but 'tis infinitely more practical to induce the constitutional weepers to laugh with you.—New York Recorder.

A Lion Story.

"Though lions are timid enough in the daytime," said a well seasoned African hunter, "when the sun has set and darkness comes they become bold and fearless, and often, when urged by hunger, reckless and daring. It is by no means unusual for oxen to be seized at the yoke or horses to be killed inside a stable or when tied to the wheel of a wagon. While in Mashonaland alone four men were carried off and eaten by lions during the first two years of the occupation of that country.

"One of these unfortunates was a young man who was about to start a market garden in the neighborhood of Umtali settlement. He had gone away with a cart and four oxen to buy some native meal at one of the Kaffir kraals and had outspanned for the night at a spot about six miles distant from the little township. The oxen were tied up to the yokes, and Mr. Teale was lying asleep under the cart alongside of a native when a lion walked up, and seizing him by the shoulder carried him off and killed and ate him. This lion, be it noted, showed a refined taste in disregarding the Kaffir and seizing the European."—Badminton Library.

Coquelin.

"The only Coquelin known in all France," said a learned Frenchman, "is the great actor. It is not a French name, and the fact is that many of his friends do not believe that he is of French descent. While every Frenchman is naturally proud of this distinguished countryman, yet justice requires that credit be given where it belongs. Those who have studied the question assert that Coquelin is descended from the Irish, and they base their opinion upon two important facts.

"First, the name is unique. As you know it is pronounced Kok-lan. What a similarity to Coghlan, and how natural that the Irishman who settled in France should have his name perverted from Coghlan to Coquelin! Secondly, the features of Coquelin are decidedly Hibernian. It is believed that some one of his ancestors, possibly a grandfather or great-grandfather, exiled from his native land, as so many Irishmen have been, sought shelter in France and remained there. The fact that Coquelin was born in that part of France nearest Ireland lends color to this theory."—New York Sun.

The American Girl Abroad.

An Englishman of noble birth was telling me many pleasant things about some of my countrywomen whom he had met in his native land. One story which he seemed to particularly enjoy was of a young lady who, on being asked by a certain pompous and self satisfied Lord Somebody-or-other among what people she had met the most perfect, polished and cultured gentlemen, replied sweetly:

"Among the British nobility, my lord."

"Yes," said the questioner beamingly. "I felt very sure you would so reply. And among what people have you encountered the exact reverse, if I may ask?"

"Among the British nobility, my lord," answered the lady without hesitation, whereupon the conversation flagged.—Philadelphia Press.

Self Control.

Try to form a habit of self control by keeping a steady and continuous watch on the temper. Believe that those around do not mean to irritate. The state of mind in which a perpetual expectancy of offense is maintained is neither dignified nor conducive to respect. The fretful porcupine is not a pleasant companion. Irritability is not a proof of strength nor in any sense to be excused on the ground of a sensitive temperament. —New York News.

A Lie.

He who tells a lie is not sensible how great a task he undertakes, for he must be forced to invent 20 more to maintain that one.—Pope.

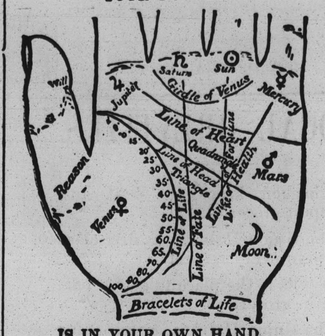
YOUR FUTURE



IS IN YOUR OWN HAND.

Palmistry assumes to tell what the lines in your hand indicate. It will amuse you, if nothing more. The above diagram almost explains itself. The length of the LINE OF LIFE indicates probable age to which you will live. Each BRACELET gives you thirty years. Well-marked LINE OF HEAD denotes brain power; clear LINE OF FORTUNE, fame or riches. Both combined mean success in life; but you must keep up with modern ideas to win it. You will find plenty of these in Demorest's Family Magazine, so attractively presented that every member of the family is entertained. It is a dozen magazines in one. A CLEAR LINE OF HEART bespeaks tenderness; a straight LINE OF FATE, peaceful life; the reverse if crooked. A well-defined LINE OF HEALTH spares you doctors' bills; so will the health hints in Demorest's. No other magazine publishes so many stories to interest the home circle. You will be subject to extremes of high spirits or despondency if you have the GIRDLE OF VENUS well marked; keep up your spirits by having Demorest's Magazine to read. By subscribing to it for 1894 you will receive a gallery of exquisite works of art of great value, besides the superb premium picture, 17x22 inches, "I'm a Daisy!" which is almost a real baby, and equal to the original oil painting which cost $300; and you will have a magazine that cannot be equaled by any in the world for its beautiful illustrations and subject matter, that will keep you posted on all the topics of the day, and all the fads, and different items of interest about the household, besides furnishing interesting reading matter, both grave and gay, for the whole family; and while Demorest's is not a fashion magazine, its fashion pages are perfect, and you get with it, free of cost, all the patterns you wish to use during the year, and in any size you choose. Send in your subscription at once, only $2.00, and you will really get over $25.00 in value. Address the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th St., New York. If you are unacquainted with the Magazine, send for a specimen copy. A large QUADRANGLE means honesty; a large TRIANGLE, generosity; long FIRST DIVISION OF THUMB, strong will; LONG SECOND DIVISION, reasoning faculty. The MOUNT OF JUPITER betokens ambition; that of SATURN, prudence; the SUN, love of splendor; MARS, courage; MOON, imagination; VENUS, love of pleasure; and MERCURY, intelligence. Take our advice as above and you will be sure to possess the last and most valuable quality.
